May Combine 10 N.Y. Hospitals In Centers, Also Medical School

A proposal was put forward to integrate the ten member hospitals of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, in New York, into coordinated hospital centers and affiliate them with medical schools. The long-range plan is detailed in a report entitled, "Planning for Better Hospital Care," written by Eli Ginzberg, Professor of Economics at Columbia University's Graduate School of Business, and Dr. Peter Rogatz, associate director of Montefiore Hospital, the Bronx.

The report stresses that patient services, medical education, and research are interdependent, says the New York Times. The establishment of a Bronx Jewish Hospital Center by affiliating Lebanon, Bronx, and Montefiore Hospitals with the Albert Einstein College of Medicine is specifically recommended in the study.

It also recommended the integration of Long Island Jewish Hospital and Hillside Hospital, Queens, and the Home and Hospital of the Daughters of Israel, which is contemplating relocation and expansion. The latter is now at 1260 Fifth Avenue at 106th Street.

The co-operation of one or more medical schools would be sought for this group. The report also suggested the creation of a joint planning committee of trustees of Brooklyn Jewish and Maimonides Hospitals to consider at an "appropriate future time" the development of a similar center in Brooklyn.

It proposed that such an organization should also incorporate the resources of a non-Federation hospital in affiliation with the Downstate Medical Center. The Federation was advised to develop closer affiliations for Mount Sinai, Joint Diseases, and Beth Israel Hospitals with medical schools in Manhattan. The report also suggested the feasibility of establishing the Hospital of Joint Diseases, as an orthopedic division of a Federation hospital center.

Gifts from the Federation account for up to 15 per cent of the hospitals' annual operating expenses. Federation grants cover, in addition, nearly 90 per cent of the operating deficit.

The report, which was published by the Columbia University Press, complements a study made last August by Dr. Ray E. Trussell, now Commissioner of Hospitals, for Mayor Wagner's Commission on Health Services.

Two other experts joined with Dr. Trussell as consultants on the Ginzberg-Rogatz report, says the New York Times. They are Dr. Albert W. Snoke, director of the Grace-New Haven Community Hospital; and Dr. Jack Masur, director of the Clinical Center, National Institutes of Health.

Buber Reminds Ben-Gurion Of Equality Pledge To Arabs

Prof. Martin Buber took Premier Ben-Gurion to task for having said that most of the Israeli Arabs, "if given the opportunity, would help destroy Israel." Dr. Buber, a philosopher and professor emeritus at Hebrew University, signed a statement issued by Ihud, an association promoting the settlement of differences between Jews and Arabs in Israel and between Israel and the Arab states, says the New York Times. "Ihud" is Hebrew for "union."

The statement also was signed by Prof. Ernst Simon, head of the education department at the University, and Dr. Shimon Shereshevsky, chairman of Ihud. Their complaint, the statement read, lay in the Premier's remarks in an interview that appeared in Le Figaro, a French newspaper.

"The Arabs in Israel," Premier Ben-Gurion was quoted as having said, "enjoy economic, social, and educational conditions superior to those in any Arab country, yet they are discontented or hostile toward Israel.

"Not that they wish for still quicker material or social advancement but it is a question of sentiment and solidarity — they are imbued with Arab nationalism.

"While highly appreciating the benefits they personally derive from Israel's development," he was quoted as having said, "most of them would prefer this country to be an Arab state and if given the opportunity would help destroy Israel."

This, Professor Buber said, is the kind of expression that would make bad citizens of the Arabs and is unworthy of early ideals of the founders of the Jewish state.

"Mr. Ben-Gurion" the Ihud statement contended, "conveniently forgets what the history and ideology of the Zionist movement taught us: that a comparatively high standard of living does not compensate for a lack of personal and national dignity. At the inception of the state, complete equality with the Jewish citizens was promised to the Arab population."

The statement charged that Israel had imbued her Arab inhabitants with the feeling that they were second-rate citizens, both by things done to them and things not done, says the New York Times. Ihud pointed to the military government under which most of Israel's 240,000 Arabs are ruled as a prime example of the discriminatory treatment they get.

"Ihud therefore demands," the statement concluded, "that the Government should do everything to honor the original pledge, first of all by abolishing military government in the Arab areas of the country as well as all other forms of discrimination."

A.J.C. SCORES ANTI-SEMITIC GROUPS FOR VANDALISM IN THE ARGENTINE

Extensive anti-Semitic and other anti-democratic vandalism in Argentina was reported in Beverly Hills, Cal., by the American Jewish Committee. Jacob Blaustein, the organization's honorary president, said the activities had been ignored by Argentine law-enforcement authorities and that Committee officials conferred recently with the U.S. State Department about the reports.

Mr. Blaustein, a Baltimore industrialist and former United States representative in the United Nations General Assembly, said his statements were based on reports from the Committee's Buenos Aires office, says the New York Times. He listed several Argentine organizations that he said "are neo-Fascist and strongly anti-United States." They "appear to have the support of some Argentine army officers and a number of priests of the Roman Catholic Church, although both the army and the church are officially opposed to these groups," he added.

"It is understood," he said, "that the Vatican has censured the priests involved in the Fascist fringe groups."

The fifty-six-year-old American Jewish Committee, which has its headquarters in New York, concerns itself with civil and religious rights of Jews and other minority groups. Its national executive board began closed committee meetings at the Beverly Hilton Hotel on the eve of a four-day Western Regional meeting of the organization. It lists 30,000 members in 600 communities.

Mr. Blaustein cited as objectionable activities last year the distribution of anti-Semitic leaflets on Buenos Aires streets; defacement with slogans, swastikas, and tar of Jewish school and organization buildings; bomb and fire damage to Jewish synagogue and schools; and a gang attack on two Jewish youths on the Jewish New Year.

He also reported "bomb and gun attacks" against the non-Jewish Frey Mocho Theatre in Buenos Aires, the Argentine Press Association, and the University of Buenos Aires School of Philosophy.

The report named as anti-Semitic organizations: Tacuara, which it said was an amalgamation of the Nationalist Union of Secondary School Students and the Nationalist Alliance; the National Restoration Guard, the Law Student Union and the Economic Students Union, says the New York Times. Tacuara, the report said, "maintains contact with similar neo-Fascist movements in Europe" and in North Africa.

"Paul Vagi, chief of the Argentine branch of the neo-Fascist Hungarian MHBK (Comradely Federation of Hungarian Fighters) is believed to be serving as a liaison," it continued. "Dr. Marcello Sanchez Sorondo, who is associated with the Semana Arabe (Arab Week), a publication of the Arab League, is reported to be a source of financial support."

The organizations, it was stated, "openly commit acts of vandalism and violence without serious police intercession" and members "seem to enjoy a strange immunity from police arrest," possibly because the groups "appear to have significant connections with individuals in government, police, military, and church circles."

However, Mr. Blaustein said, Argentine officials and church leaders are "clearly opposed to these fringe groups" and the Argentine Senate last year formally denounced Tacuara.

It was described as "a quasi-military organization with cells and command posts in Buenos Aires and other major cities in Argentina."

"It emerged shortly after the overthrow of the Peron Government in 1955," the report said, according to the New York Times. "It is headed by Alberto Escuro, a veteran organizer of anti-United States and anti-Jewish riots."

Jews, Catholics Sponsor Group Hostility Study In Rome

A special course in religious and racial group relations, under joint Roman Catholic and Jewish sponsorship, will begin soon at Pro Deo University in Rome. This announcement was made at Beverly Hills, Cal., by the American Jewish Committee, which developed and endowed the program. Pro Deo is a Catholic-sponsored university for social studies.

The $30,000 endowment sets up what is believed to be the first Chair of Intergroup Relations at a European university or college. It could be termed a Chair of Tolerance, says the New York Times. The course will be given by Dr. Eugene Hevesi, a foreign affairs specialist for the Committee since 1940, and a former Hungarian diplomat.

Ralph Friedman, a New York City industrialist and a member of the council's National Executive Board, headed the group that arranged the program. Mr. Friedman said subjects would include causes of prejudice; social forces working toward cooperation, integration in America, intergroup relations in Communist satellite nations, and anti-Semitism as "the international prototype of group hostility."

The course will be open to all students at the University, it was indicated. Pro Deo has a student body of about 2,000 Catholics, plus several score Protestants, Jews, Moslems, Hindus, and Buddhists from more than twenty-eight countries. The faculty includes Catholics, Protestants, and Jews.

The program, Mr. Friedman said, will stress the need for world-wide inter-religious cooperation. He said it seeks to promote the concept that the inherent dignity of man is essential to the survival of civilization.

The three-year program was established after conferences with Pro Deo executives. The University is not subject to Vatican authority, but a Catholic doctrinal council screens course matter in ethics and philosophy.

Pro Deo was founded in 1945 with the Vatican's endorsement. Its president is the Rev. Felix A. Morlion, a Belgian priest of the Dominican Order.

In 1947 an American council for the promotion of Pro Deo was set up. The council's board is made up of 40 per cent Catholics; 40 per cent Protestants; and 20 per cent

Religious Zionist Head Asks Aides To Give Two Years To Israel

The head of the Religious Zionists of America appealed to rabbis and Jewish educators, teachers and social workers "to become an army of pioneers to help build the socio-economic structure of Israel." Rabbi Bernard Bergman, president of the Zionist group, addressed a meeting at its headquarters at 80 Fifth Avenue, in New York, says the New York Times. Urging those going to Israel to stay there "for a minimum of two years so as to leave a deep imprint on the landscape of the country," he said:

"American-trained scholars and professionals could be most inventive in guiding Israel's network of social institutions and religious-cultural institutions along the paths of American efficiency.

"Israeli youth could learn immensely about their rich religious heritage and tradition from the teachings of the American rabbi.

"The interaction between these American pioneers and the Israelis would strengthen and make more meaningful the spiritual communications between these two Jewish communities."

Rabbi Bergman further maintained that Religious Zionism in the U. S. "should play a more significant part in the perpetuation of Jewish educational values through all-day schools, adult education courses in all synagogues and community centers, and intensified higher learning."

He also urged that President Kennedy establish a commission of specialists, "in liaison with United Nations agencies," to make a detailed study for the purpose of "suggesting immediate, [illegible] approach to the problems of the Middle East."

Deploring "Communist penetration" in that part of the world, reports the New York Times, he said: "A remedy is most vital to restore American prestige and to remove the strife which the Arab nations have caused by their policy of hatred toward Israel."

Israel To Increase Copper Output Of Ancient Mines

Israel has begun a new five-year plan to increase its role as a copper producer. Since 1951, Israel has been mining copper from King Solomon's ancient mines near the port of Elath at the southern tip of the country. Its new plans call for an expansion of mine production, together with construction of a new copper refinery.

Upon completion of this program, the Government-owned Israel Mining Industries expects to be producing 14,000 tons of refined copper a year, of which half will be consumed within Israel, says the New York Times. This would be roughly equivalent to the refined output of Austria. World refined copper production in 1959 was about 4,700,000 tons.

Using the Bible as their guide, mining experts ten years ago were able to find the ancient mines and determined that sufficient reserves existed to warrant resumed mining activity. Thus, in 1951, financed by Israel Bonds, the Timna Valley mines again bustled with mining activity.

It is estimated that the ancient mines have reserves of about 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 tons of ore. Since 1951, only 700,000 tons have been mined, averaging a copper yield of 1.5 per cent.

So far, the red metal has not been completely refined within Israel. The ore has been processed into copper cement, a semi-refined ore. The [illegible] rough ore, which is mixed with sulphuric acid to form a water-soluble compound of copper sulphate. Scrap iron bits are then dipped into the solution, forming iron sulphate and precipitating the copper cement.

Last year, 5,300 tons of copper cement were exported to Britain, Portugal, Brazil, West Germany, and Japan, with a combined value of $3,500,000.

In search of richer ore, shafts have been sunk almost 300 feet and some 1,300 feet in length. The 480 workers in the mines and refinery include immigrants from Tunisia, the Soviet Union, Morocco, Rumania, Yemen, and South Africa, says the New York Times. The new plant will produce 12,000 tons of electrolytic copper; 500 tons of copper sulphate, and 1,500 tons of material which can be converted into copper sulphate.

WHAT HAPPENED TO THE JEWISH WAR ORPHANS

1,116 Jewish war orphans who miraculously survived the horrors of Nazi concentration camps, arrived in Canada between 1947 and 1949. Rescued from a grim future in Europe by the Canadian Jewish Congress, they were given a new lease on life in Canadian foster homes. With warmth and understanding, Maclean's associate editor Sidney Katz relates how many of these youngsters—who only a few years ago couldn't speak a word of English—have grown into doctors, dentists, artists and writers.

Never Under-Estimate The Power Of The Ladies' Committee

Establishment of Iran's first pre-school class for mentally retarded children of underprivileged families was announced in a statement issued by Mrs. Shamsi Hekmat, president of the Jewish Ladies' Committee of Tehran, and Theodore Feder, director of the Joint Distribution Committee (JDC) Office for Iran.

The class, consisting of 11 children, is sponsored jointly by the Ladies' Committee and JDC, and is housed in a day-care center situated in the "mahalleh", the old Jewish quarter of Iran. Special play and teaching equipment was donated by the Central British Fund, a Jewish welfare organization of England. Funds for JDC's relief and rehabilitation programs are received through the campaigns of the United Jewish Appeal.

Although the class was started some four months ago, public announcement was withheld until there was evidence that it could continue, Mrs. Hekmat and Mr. Feder said.

"In this short space of time," they said, "remarkable results have been achieved." Children who would otherwise never have been able to achieve any kind of education are responding to the stimulus provided by the special care and teaching given them in the class. They are already able to recognize letters and numbers and when they leave to enter school they will be equipped to learn how to read and write and do arithmetic together with their more fortunate, normally-intelligent classmates.

The Ladies' Committee was organized in 1947; in 1952 they expanded their program by establishing a small day-care center. They have now extended their activities into seven other cities in Iran, where Jewish Ladies' Committees have also been organized. Today there are two day-care centres in Tehran and one each in Shiraz, Isfahan, and Hamadan. Since 1954, the work of the Ladies' Committee has been aided and subsidized by JDC. In addition, JDC sponsors medical, sanitation, feeding and educational programs in 20 cities in Iran.

Noting that JDC sponsors welfare programs in 27 countries, Mr. Feder declared: "I can safely say that we have made greater strides in our work here than in many other countries. A large part of this is due to the understanding and the encouragement we have received from the Iranian government."

Creation of the pre-school class for retarded children was suggested by the Ladies' Committee and won immediate support from JDC. Realizing that the needs of retarded children could not be met in large classrooms, it was decided that they could be better served in small groups, where they could receive concentrated attention.

Two teachers, already trained as kindergartners, were given a special six-week course by the JDC day-care consultant for Iran, Miss Evelyn Peters, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, a graduate of the University of Iowa, and a member of the staff of the first project for mentally retarded pre-school children conducted by the University of Illinois. The training of the teachers for the newly-opened class is an on-going program and the entire project is under the constant supervision of Miss Peters.

The Tehran School of Social Work is keenly interested in the project and has assigned a second-year student to work with the class, as well as the children's families, and to make regular reports on progress to the School.

Molly Picon's MISH-MASH

A few years ago, when I was playing in "Morning Star," Al Smith, who was governor of New York at the time, came back stage to see me. Though the play was a tearful drama of the first water, the Governor came into my room with a broad smile. Grey derby in hand, he paid me a warm compliment. Very flattered I replied, "That pleases me no end, neighbor." "Neighbor?" asked Smith. "Of course," I said. "I was born downtown on the east side just as you were." "On which street?" he asked. "Ridge Street," I replied. "Oh," said the Governor, "that was way uptown from where I was born."

It just goes to show that no matter how far downtown you live there's always someone farther downtown. This is known as Picon's Law of Relativity, very profound and philosophical.

But man does not live by philosophy alone. Sometimes he needs some bread. Maybe a nice piece of cholla, with a dish of Rokeach Gefilte Fish. Whatever fond memories you have of gefilte fish, Rokeach will bring them back. Rokeach uses the freshest whitefish, pike and carp . . . you know, the best. And they use some onions, Grade A eggs, a few carrots. Try a jar of Rokeach Gefilte Fish. How can you go wrong? They're old friends of the family since 1870. Do you need a better reason?

Charges By A.J.C. That Aramco Discriminates Against Jews Both In U.S. And Saudi Arabia Considered

Charges by the American Jewish Congress that the Arabian American Oil Company discriminates against Jews both in the U.S. and Saudi Arabia were under consideration by the New York State Commission Against Discrimination (SCAD) following two days of hearing on the AJCongress complaint. Lawyers for both sides agreed to submit and exchange briefs by February 19. Final arguments in the case will be made later.

The SCAD hearing was in accordance with an order by the New York Court of Appeals on March 2, 1961, upholding two lower court decisions, that SCAD either "eliminate the unlawful practice complained of" by the AJCongress in its charges of anti-Jewish discrimination by Aramco, or conduct a full public hearing on the charges.

During the closing minutes of the trial the lawyer representing Aramco questioned the impartiality of the panel of SCAD Commissioners hearing the case. Chester Bordeau, representing Aramco, asked whether any member of SCAD was a member or supporter of the American Jewish Congress "or any other organization that furthers the Zionist movement."

J. Edward Conway, presiding at the hearing, rebuked the Aramco attorney for raising doubts as to the objectivity of the panel but permitted the three Commissioners to answer.

Commissioner Bernard Katzen said he wished to reply, although he did not concede the question was proper. Mr. Katzen said that he had never been a member of or contributor to the American Jewish Congress, and added that the fact of his being Jewish would "in no way" affect his objectivity and impartiality in judging the case. The two other SCAD members hearing the case, Mrs. Mary Louise Nice and Mr. Conway, said they were not Jewish.

Commissioner Conway described as "wholly improper and irrelevant" Mr. Bordeau's question about affiliation with the "Zionist movement." He refused to admit the question into the record. Mr. Conway added that it was "rare" and "most unusual" to question the qualifications of the members of a court or tribunal after the case had been completed. The exchange came following two days of hearings during which the American Jewish Congress charged, and Aramco denied, anti-Jewish job discrimination by the oil company both in its New York office and in its oil-producing and refining activities in Saudi Arabia.

Earlier, Mr. Bordeau moved that the charges against Aramco be dismissed on five grounds:

(1) The American Jewish Congress was not a "party aggrieved" under the State Fair Employment Law and could not bring charges.

(2) No evidence had been introduced that Aramco discriminated in domestic employment and since 1950 no complaint of discrimination had been filed by any individual with SCAD.

(3) An exemption granted by SCAD to Aramco in 1950, permitting the company to ask the religion of applicants expecting to go to Saudi Arabia, had never been revoked.

(4) To preclude Aramco from inquiring about the religion of employees being considered for jobs abroad would, in effect, violate the State anti-bias law by causing unemployment among non-Jews, since the company would have to go out of business.

(5) A ruling against Aramco would "adversely affect the foreign relations and the national security of the United States" and would contravene Article II of the United States Constitution, which gives only to the executive branch authority to conduct the foreign affairs and the national defense of the United States.

A point-by-point reply to these arguments was made by Shad Polier, national vice-president of the AJCongress, who is serving as counsel for the Jewish organization in the case, and by Mrs. Ann Thacher Clark Anderson of the SCAD legal staff, appearing for the Commission.

In their separate replies, the AJCongress and SCAD counsels pointed out:

(1) Three New York courts, the State Supreme Court, the Appellate Division, and the Court of Appeals, have all upheld the status of the American Jewish Congress as a "party aggrieved" in the case.

(2) The Aramco employment application form serves notice on all job seekers that their usefulness to the company and their advancement opportunities would be limited if they could not obtain visas for Saudi Arabia, which bars Jews. Despite this, 168 of 280 employees in Aramco's New York office, many of them skilled workers employed for ten years or more, have never been to Saudi Arabia and are not expected to go there in the future.

"The language on Aramco's application form misrepresents the true job situation in the company, and says in effect, 'We want gentiles, we don't want Jews in our office,'" SCAD counsel Anderson told the hearing. She also cited documents and testimony showing a consistent absence of Jewish names on Aramco's employment rolls.

(3) In 1956, a SCAD investigating Commissioner issued a ruling sustaining an exemption granted to Aramco in 1950. This 1956 ruling was challenged in the courts by the American Jewish Congress. The courts upheld the AJCongress and in so doing annulled the exemption SCAD had granted Aramco in 1950.

(4) It is not the purpose of the Constitution of the State of New York to ensure full employment but rather that all employment shall be had without racial or religious discrimination.

(5) The State Department has never opposed the enforcement of the New York anti-discrimination law against Aramco in New York State. Evidence introduced at the trial by AJCongress showed that the State Department had refused a Saudi Arabian request to certify that an American businessman seeking to register a trademark in the Arab country was not Jewish. The State Department refusal to meet the request was accompanied by the declaration that the government would not participate in any racial or religious discrimination against U.S. citizens.

Mr. Polier also noted that the only State Department opinion expressing concern with the case referred to a SCAD order that would compel Aramco to employ Jews in Saudi Arabia, which AJCongress has never sought. "There is no treaty or pact between the United States and Saudi Arabia which sanctions nullification of the laws of the State of New York and to enforce the New York law would in no way impair either the international relations or the security of the United States," Mr. Polier declared.

In his summation, Mr. Polier cited a report by SCAD field representative Harry Anderson, dated January 19, 1953, reporting a conversation with Thomas Barry, then Aramco's counsel. The Anderson report, which had been introduced as evidence in the case, quoted Mr. Barry as having stated that the King of Arabia "strenuously objects to the employment of Jews in any part of Aramco's American operation" and that Aramco officials "regularly meet with the King and . . . know how he feels toward the employment of Jews by Aramco."

Mr. Polier also cited a 1953 SCAD report in which Aramco officials admitted that under their agreement with Saudi Arabia, officials of the Arab country have the right to examine the records of Aramco and could therefore determine whether there were any Jewish names on the payroll.

In his closing statement at the hearing, Mr. Polier noted Aramco's claim that it is Saudi Arabia and not the company that bars Jews from entering that country. The record makes it "absolutely clear," however, the AJCongress leader declared, that "Aramco is not merely the victim of Arabia's discriminatory policy but rather actively assists the Government of Saudi Arabia in screening Jews for employment. It is in this that it violates state law. The State of New York cannot require Saudi Arabia to admit Jews. But SCAD can and should bar Aramco from acting as the tool and agent of a foreign power in violating the laws of the State.

"Aramco uses the possibility of travel to Saudi Arabia as a formula to disguise the fact that it is actually honoring a commitment to its business partner, Saudi Arabia, to exclude Jews from any part of its payroll, foreign or domestic. The Supreme Court, the Appellate Division and the Court of Appeals have properly refused to permit Aramco to succeed in this unsubtle attempt to circumvent the plain provision of the law against discrimination.

"We are confident that this SCAD hearing will result in an order by the State Commission Against Discrimination requiring full and immediate compliance by the Arabian American Oil Company with the New York State fair employment law."

W.J.C. Reports Germans Divided On Israel As Eichmann Trial Locale

A West German public opinion poll has revealed that almost as many Germans would have preferred Eichmann to be tried in Germany as in Israel. A poll analysis, made by the World Jewish Congress in New York, shows that 35% believed that Israel was the right place; 33% would have preferred Germany; 15% thought that the passage of time should have eliminated any trial; 4% advocated an international trial; and 13% offered no view as to where Eichmann should have been tried.

The findings of the poll, which was conducted by DIVO (Institute for Social and Opinion Research) were recently transmitted to Dr. Nehemiah Robinson, director of the World Jewish Congress' Institute of Jewish Affairs in New York. Almost 2,000 persons in West Germany and Berlin were questioned as to their knowledge and opinion on the trial. Basic findings showed that 95% of all the persons polled had heard something about the trial. This percentage had been topped only once, by 98% who had heard about the Sputnik, and it compared with the 70% recorded for persons who had heard news of President Kennedy's election.

Most persons canvassed were well informed about the reasons and purpose of the trial: 59% said it was because of Eichmann's personal guilt (37% knew of his leading role in the murder of Jews); 10% thought the reasons included simply trying him for murder; for membership in the S.S.; a desire to enlighten the public on the Nazi era. Twelve per cent believed that he may or may not have been guilty, and that the trial was just a show, while 1% had no interest in the trial at all and 9% offered no views on the reasons for it.

Dr. Robinson's analysis of the poll notes that as regards approval of Israel as the place for the trial, there was practically no difference of viewpoint between members of the two major political parties, the Christian Democratic Union and the Social Democrats, but members of smaller political groups and unaffiliated persons were less favorable towards Israel as the locale: 24 and 30 p.c., respectively. "Another interesting feature of the poll," Dr. Robinson noted, "was that the largest percentage of advocates of an Israel trial was in the small, more reactionary state of Rheinland-Pfalz (49%); and the smallest (26%) was in West Berlin."
